Nicaragua: Smear campaign, harassment against feminist human rights defenders and deportation of Ana Quirós

Nicaraguan authorities deported woman human rights defender Ana Quirós, who is a Costa Rican and Nicaraguan national, on 26 November 2018. The deportation is part of a wider smear campaign against and repression of feminist movements in Nicaragua.

Ana Quirós is a feminist woman human rights defender, an expert in public health and director of the non-governmental organisation Centro de Información y Servicios de Asesoría en Salud (Centre for Health Information and Advisory Services). She is a Costa Rican and naturalised Nicaraguan citizen, who has worked in Nicaragua for the past 40 years, where she promotes socio-cultural rights and more specifically the right to health.

Ana Quirós was called to attend a hearing at the General Directorate on Migration and Foreign Citizens, where she was handcuffed and detained alongside political prisoners inside El Chipote prison for over five hours. The defender was deported to Costa Rica on 26 November 2018, without the application of formal procedures or the possibility to obtain legal defence. During that time, no information on her whereabouts was given. The case was observed by the Consulate of Costa Rica, who advocated on behalf of Ana Quirós.

The deportation is believed to have been ordered in retaliation for her participation in a press conference by Nicaraguan feminist movements in Managua, where they announced that they canceled a planned protest on the International Day for the Elimination of Violence against Women on 25 November 2018. On 23 November 2018, a number of feminist leaders had been denied entry in police facilities in Managua, where they intended to request the permission for the protest.

The deportation of Ana Quirós follows prior attempts of the Nicaraguan authorities to weaken Nicaraguan feminist movements. On 23 November, Nicaragua’s Vice President Rosario Murillo gave a speech in which she portrayed feminist women as responsible for the crimes committed in Nicaragua during recent uprisings. She demanded punishment for their actions of “selfishness, vanity, and self-serving blindness”.

On that same day, a ban on the traditional carnival for the International Day for the Elimination of Violence against Women that had been held for the last 25 years in the city of Matagalpa was imposed. Regardless of having granted previous authorisation for the march, the police occupied the designated meeting points and the headquarters of the Women's Collective of Matagalpa (Colectivo de Mujeres de Matagalpa), to prevent people from assembling.

The feminist human rights defenders Ana María Ara and María Jesús Ara, from Spain, and Beatriz Uber, from Switzerland, members of the Women’s Collective of Matagalpa, had their residence permits revoked and their citizenship processes ended by the General Directorate on Migration and Foreign Citizens (Dirección General de Migración y Extranjería, DGME). They were also forced to sign a document stating that they would refrain from participating in political acts and would present themselves to the authorities every 15 days.

Front Line Defenders is concerned about the use of prior restraint on social demonstrations by Nicaraguan authorities, and the actions of the General Directorate on Migration and Foreign Citizens harassing women human rights defenders. Front Line Defenders is especially concerned about the deportation of Nicaraguan human rights defender Ana Quirós, given the non-application of a formal process to her case and the lack of any legal provision for the deportation of Nicaraguan nationals.

Front Line Defenders urges the authorities in Nicaragua to:

1. Immediately and unconditionally revoke Ana Quirós’ deportation;

2. Immediately and unconditionally restore the residence permits of human rights defenders Ana María Ara, María Jesús Ara, and Beatriz Uber, and guarantee their protection while in Nicaragua;

3. Take measures to ensure that public officials refrain from making statements or declarations stigmatising the legitimate work of women human rights defenders;

4. Take all the necessary steps to allow the exercise of the rights to free association and peaceful demonstration in Nicaragua, especially for women human rights defenders.

5. Guarantee in all circumstances that human rights defenders in Nicaragua are able to carry out their legitimate human rights activities without fear of reprisals and free of all restrictions including judicial harassment.

Front Line Defenders respectfully reminds you that the United Nations Declaration on the Right and Responsibility of Individuals, Groups and Organs of Society to Promote and Protect Universally Recognized Human Rights and Fundamental Freedoms, adopted by consensus by the UN General Assembly on 9 December 1998, recognises the legitimacy of the activities of human rights defenders, their right to freedom of association and to carry out their activities without fear of reprisals. We would particularly draw attention to Article 6: “Everyone has the right, individually and in association with others: (b) As provided for in human rights and other applicable international instruments, freely to publish, impart or disseminate to others views, information and knowledge on all human rights and fundamental freedoms; (c) To study, discuss, form and hold opinions on the observance, both in law and in practice, of all human rights and fundamental freedoms and, through these and other appropriate means, to draw public attention to those matters”, to Article 18 (2): “Individuals, groups, and non-governmental organisations have an important role to play and a responsibility in safeguarding democracy, promoting human rights and fundamental freedoms and contributing to the promotion and advancement of democratic societies, institutions and processes, and to Article 12 (2): “The State shall take all necessary measures to ensure the protection by the competent authorities of everyone, individually and in association with others, against any violence, threats, retaliation, de facto or de jure adverse discrimination, pressure or any other arbitrary action as a consequence of his or her legitimate exercise of the rights referred to in the present Declaration.”

Please inform us of any actions that may be taken with regard to the above case.

Yours sincerely,

Andrew Anderson
